When he resigned some time ago, in consequence of the proceeding against Mr. Garret, I asked Mr. Dadi to ex-enlarged by the action of the Government, and the House should be bound to be excluded by the state of the law, as it then was, the House should care for all, if it thought fit, admit the law and every other law which should apply to be amended. Now we are asked what is to be done about the poets, the slaves, about felons. I am not sure whether that objection did not proceed from some kind of error. It is said, "If we pass this bill we shall be placed in a difficult position with regard to aliens, felons, and the clergy." (Lord John Russell.) The clergy. The case of the clergy, I think, is not a precedent for this bill. The case of the clergy is a very high duty to exclude clergymen from this House; but I consider it is a question exceedingly open to discussion as to whether it is a precedent question at all. I am not going to aliens and felons, those disqualification test upon the ineligible and well-understood principles of the common law of England. I have said that I am not going to do that, and I have said that I am not going to do that. I think I have, and I have said that I am not going to do that. I think I have, and I have said that I am not going to do that.

It may be that gentlemen are not so much interested in the question towards a particular course, which brings these political profit, (Hear, hear, I am making no accusation.) "Oh, oh," and laughter from the Opposition. I only say it is strange that they should come to these questions in that direction. But what could I have to say in the direction that we have taken? (Cheese.) Do you suppose that we are ignorant that the Government have been doing this for years, and since the war? Mr. Bradburn came up here paid votes and we have lost them? (Cheese and counter cheese.) You are a party against it. We are not less aware of it. (Hear, hear.) But it is not some relief to be given to us—we give you the same under circumstances rather more difficult—producing the same result. (Hear, hear.)

Liberal party has suffered and is suffering on its account. (Hear, hear.) It is not the first time in its history. (Cheese.) The old story of the extension of reforms tells us that has acted about the extension of reforms tells

SYDNEY MUNICIPAL COUNCIL

SYDNEY MUNICIPAL COUNCIL.

The hundred and fifth quarterly meeting of the Sydney Municipal Council was held at the Town Hall on Saturday, when the Mayor occupied the chair, and there was a large attendance of aldermen.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

THE CATTLE SALEYARDS.

In connection with the contract of Messrs. Topham, Angus and Co. for the free-pen-lotion cattle saleyards, the Mayor reported that the loss to the council in consequence of the contract not being completed in the specified time exceeded the penalty it was intended to impose upon the contractors. He thought therefore that the council would not be justified in insisting any of the penalty. His Worship also stated that the contractors had given notice of an action for damages to £25000 against the council. He had informed them that the amount due to them less the forfeiture would yield less than this.

ALDERMAN WITHERS presented petitions for repairs to sewage in Crown-street and adjacent streets, and for a lamp in Brandy-street.

LINKS IN THE CITY.

ALDERMAN GREY drew attention to the fact that at some of the fire in the city much property had been destroyed by water being unnecessarily thrown upon it. This he thought was partly in consequence of a premium being offered to the brigade that first threw water on a fire, and he would suggest that the premium be given only to the brigade that first attended on the scene of a fire.

The MAYOR promised that the matter should receive the earliest possible attention.

Engineer reported that the quantity of water delivered into the city and suburbs during the year 1882 was 1,000,000,000 gallons, namely, 400 millions from Putney and 600 millions from the Lochan Scaup. The cost per 1000 gallons delivered into the Crown-street reservoir, including repairs to dams, wages, interest on the loan, and other incidental expenses, was 1s. 6d. (less the cost of city engineer's staff, the pumping staff, the engineering staff at Crown-street, the cost of coal and steam material, and interest on the £150,000 loan on original capital, and 1d. on the £150,000 loan during the year), derived from all sources, amounted to £21,810. 3s. 6d. The cost per thousand gallons delivered to the city and suburbs, taking into account the cost of the City Engineer's staff, the City Engineer's staff, interest on £150,000, and incidental expenses incurred during the year 1882 for repairs to water-lanes, maintenance and repairs, and excluding the cost of pipes, pipelayers, interest on original outlay and assets, was £34. The amount expended in laying watermains in the city and suburbs, and not included in the above during the same period, was £35,044—namely, labour, wages, 2,695 19s. 2d.; cartage, £169 2s. 10d.; material, £28,186 11s.; pipelayers and assistants, £1300. The item material included pipes purchased during the year. The balance remained on hand, but the pipes laid in 1882 were out of the date of the accounts, and were paid for before the cost was

The City Health Officer presented his quarterly report, which was as follows:—"I have the honour to submit the quarterly report ending May 31. The births registered were as follows:—In March, 163 males, 114 females—407; in April, 161 males, 129 females—290; in May, 171 males, 162 females—333; making a total of 990. The deaths recorded were: during March, 110 males, 85 females—195; during April, 122 males, 78 females—200; during May, 99 males, 67 female—166; making a total of 561. This return shows an excess of 369 births over the deaths for the past three months. During the quarter the infantile mortality (under five years) was 213: In March, 42 males, 27 females—69; in April, 55 males, 34 females—89; in May, 29

males, 27 females—60. Amongst the principal causes of death are: typhoid fever, 20; diarrhoea, 28; cancer, 11; phthisis, 59; epiphallus, 10; apoplexy, 14; convulsions, 31; heart disease, 41; bronchitis, 18; pneumonia, 17; gastritis, 17; enteritis, 1-5; liver disease, 11; premature birth, 13; old age, 16; atrophy and debility (infants), 39. Amongst the above causes phthisis ranks the highest with 59 deaths, but the degree the exposure to sunburn and wetness would

The change from summer to autumn and winter, which naturally tend to increase the mortality from this disease. The deaths from typhoid were 25, namely, 3 in March, 1 in April, and in May 9. During the last month, whilst the deaths from this fever in the city numbered 9, the number of deaths registered in the suburbs from this cause was 26, of which 6 were at the Globe and 7 at Newtown. There is no doubt that the suburbs lacking proper drainage and attention to the deposit of refuse matter are more liable to this disease than those that are carefully supervised. Many persons often find themselves in a new house, highly recommended because of its good sanitary arrangements, and their families are, sooner or later, afflicted with typhoid, diphtheria, or other lethal disease. A searching inquiry is made into drainage, waste-pipe connections, milk supply, water supply, and every other conceivable source of infection without arriving at any conclusion, and the cause possibly with the result of making unnecessary and even dangerous expenditures. The question then arises (I quote from the Journal of Medical Microbiology and Preventive Medical Science, of April 2, 1918) "whence can such diseases take

Their answer if not from one of these well-recognized sources? They began to find that the question is supplied in a case which came before Mr. Justice Fry in February last, in which it was sought to obtain an injunction against a building upon land owned by the Crown, and depositing rubbish on a certain piece of ground. This system had been and still is carried on to a great extent in and around Sydney when an owner of uneven land wishes to make it level for building purposes. In the medical journals there are many cases recorded in relation to this practice, in daily, the judgment, said, "The Fullam local board having thought it consistent with their duty to allow the refuse of dustbin to be carted away to the place of land in question, a large hole had been made into which the liquid sewage of the parish of Fulham, and part of the parish of Kensington, were also carted to the land and there stilt, a large part of the matter so collected consisting of decayed vegetable and animal matter, known under the name of soil core. Further, it was impossible to find any person who had been guilty of such a crime. But before parting from the place, upon his mind was a very painful one, for it was obvious that the builders, and persons in their employ, had been doing that which must result in serious detriment to the general health. It was nothing short of horrible to think that persons should form a scheme to deposit foul decaying animal and vegetable matter as the foundation of roads and houses, and that a man had been found guilty of such a heinous offence. It was therefore not to be wondered at that new houses, built upon such a foundation, should develop ill diseases, or favour their propagation.

Since the typhoid fever has become more prevalent in and around Sydney, the attention of the public has been directed to the state of the cowyards. Most of these yards have already been visited with a view either to their demolition, or causing such repairs and alterations to be made as will prevent the keeping of cows in the city being a nuisance. Thoroughly to carry out proper supervision of these yards, however, it is necessary that each chairman these yards, the officer or veterinary surgeon should be compelled to take out a license stating the number of cows intended to be kept and the accommodation provided for them, also that the officers entrusted with the inspection of the dairies should have the power of detaining any cow supposed to be diseased, and if after examination by a veterinary surgeon it be pronounced diseased, that such cow should be removed from the cowyard for proper treatment.

Mechanical Section.—G. F. DANNEY, Chief Engineer.
The mechanical section of Botany presented his quarterly report, which was as follows:—"I have the honour to forward quarterly report as to the waterworks and quantity of water supplied to date. The supply during the past quarter has been fully maintained throughout the entire quarter at a constant amounting in the whole to 17½ days. The machinery has received the usual repairs necessary to maintain its efficiency. Two new pump chambers are now in course of construction at Mort's Dock and Engineering Company, under contract from the Corporation. The quantity of water applied during the past quarter is slightly in advance upon that of the preceding, viz.,—Quarter, March 9, 1883, 28 million gallons per week; quarter, June 9, 1883, 28½ million gallons per week; quarter, September 9, 1883, 29½ million gallons per week; quarter, December 9, 1883, 29½ million gallons per week."—(See p. 6.)

2.5 million per week. "With the copious rainfall of the present year of over 30 inches, the dams have naturally received a most valuable quantity of storage water; but notwithstanding this, the abundance of space yet to fill before there will be the slightest probability of overflow.—H. Westcott."

FINANCE.

ALDERMAN HARRIS REMARKED: That the report of the finance committee, recommending the payment of sundry accounts, be adopted."

The motion was agreed to.

THE LATE ALDERMAN MERRIMAN.

Alderman J. D. Young moved,—("That this council do resolve in sympathy with Mrs. Merriman upon the death of her late husband, Mr. Alderman Merriman.")

He thought that this was a motion which would meet with the approval of the whole council. (Hear, hear.) It was not necessary for him to impress upon them the merits of their lamented friend. In the city, and particularly in the ward he used to represent, Alderman Merriman's name was a household word.

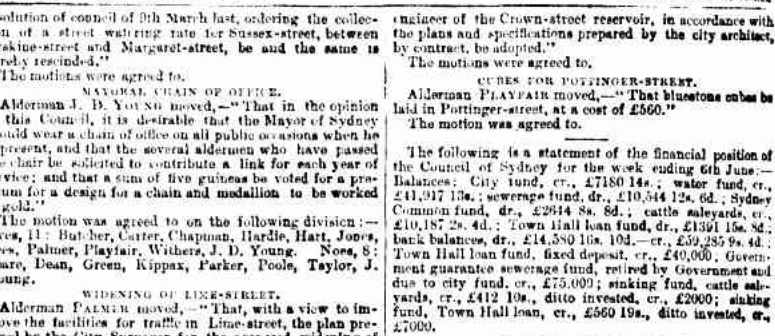

Alderman HART and Alderman PLAYFAIR spoke in unanimously kind terms of Alderman Mortimer, and the motion was unanimously agreed to.

ABOLITION OF WATERING RATE.

Alderman PLAYFAIR moved:—“That the portion of the resolution of council of 9th March last, ordering the collection of street watering rates for Fort-street, between Argyle-place and George-street, be and the same is hereby rescinded.”

Alderman TAYLOR moved:—“That the portion of the to street to Albion-street, be adopted, and forwarded to the Governor for approval." The motion was agreed to.

REMOVAL OF ENCROACHMENTS.

ALDERMAN KIPPAS moved,—"that the report of the Public Committee, recommending that the encroachments in front of Mr. Stuart's and Mr. Hogg's premises in Macquarie-street be removed, be adopted, and forwarded to the Governor for approval."

The motion was agreed to.

Public Health Committee, submitting plan of proposed new street defining the boundary between Sydney and Paddington, and for the purpose of a sewer in the line of the old creek, so that application be made to the Government to resume the land necessary, be adopted."

The motion was agreed to.

PILGRIMS' LICENSES.
Mr. ALGERMAN GREEN moved—That the report of the Whitely's estimate for the work was $34,000, and five orders were sent in, of which McLeod and Noble's, for $10,000, was, on the motion of Alderman TAYLOR, rejected.

The tender of — Vernon for the purchase and removal of certain building stone at Moore Park, for £30, was rejected.
